Accidents and mishaps seem to be the die order of events on the C. V. Ry. It is stated by good authority that a few months ago the C. V. Ry. employed seven new engineers and that six of them had been concerned in serious accidents since their employment. The seventh engineer brought a train up from White River Junction Saturday evening and had orders to set off on the side track at the lower end of the yard. When the yard was reached the brakeman sent ahead to open the switch was a new man and opened the wrong switch and the train pulled in on. wrong switch and the train pulled in on the short blind siding by the lumber sheds, with the result of soon being off the track. In 1839 he went to California and at first engaged in the mercantile business for about six years. He then went to the Yesemite Valley which was just then being opened up to tourists' travel. He ran a stage coach from Stockton to the valley, 150 miles. Later the railroad was built to Raymond, 70 miles from the valley. Mr. Washburn gradually increased his stage business and finally organized a stock company, of which he is manager and principal stockholder. This manager and principal stockholder. This company owns several hotels in the vicin-ty of the park and also controls all the ines of transportation from Raymond to the park.

Petitions for three additional rural free delivery routes have recently been forwarded to the postoffice department, all to start from Bethel postoffice. The first route asked for passes on the south side of White from Bethel postoffice. The first route asked for passes on the south side of White river to Foxville, back to Bethel on the north side of White river to the Cherry Hill cometery, then over Christian Hill to the Sanford farm, then onto the river road and back toward Bethel on the east side of the Branch to Findley bridge, then to the old church, and then back to Bethel village on the west side of the Branch. The second route reaches from Bethel to Gaysville on the north side of White river, thence to M. L. Wyman's and over the hill by A. A. Keyes' to Stony Brook, thence back to Gaysville and on to Bethel on the south side of White river. The third route goes to Barnard by the stage route and south side of White river. The third route goes to Barnard by the stage route and back to Bethel by the hillroad. When Inspector Sawyer was here to look up the route asked for in Lympus and Camp Brook he suggested that Bethel was a suitable center from which to start several routes, and these politions are made in accordance with his suggestions.

East Bethel Schoolhouse.

The alterations on the East Bethel choolhouse have been completed and diss Weymouth, the teacher, is holding essions in the building, use having been nade of the Grange half during repairs. made of the Grange half during repairs.
It is practically a new building, scarcely anything of the old building being left, but a portion of the frame. The new school-room is larger than the old by a space of four feet by twelve, which was formerly taken by the entry, and a new entry or cloak room has been built 10 by 12 ft. and a very convenient shed built, opening from the cloak room, 16 by 20 ft.

The interior of the schoolhouse is nicely fixed in hard time and struce and new finished in hard pine and spruce and new scats placed, with a capacity for thirty-four scholars. One of the best features of the structure is the heating and ventilating sparatus built by Howard W. Fowler & Son under the directions of the state board of health. A common cast iron stove is enclosed or "jacketed" with a galvanized iron heater about five feet in dimension each way. The cold air is brought in from catchers directly beneath the stove, and outdoors directly beneath the stove, and as it rises in the enclosure is warmed, and passes through the opening in the top of the jacket into the room. On another side of the room is the ventilator for removing the bad air, a cylinder about two feet in diameter, open at the bottom near the floor and passing up through the roof out-of-doors. A large, convenient cuppoard floor and passing up through the roof outof-doors. A large, convenient cuppoard holds the school supplies. The carpenter work has been done by F. B. Gilman, Fred Young and Glenn Gilman. The inside painting has been done by John T. Reed and the mason work by John Parrott. The cutside has not been painted yet. The total expense is estimated at about $1,000.

It probably would have been much cheaper to have built a new house, discarding the old building entirely, but the town directors were hampered by the vote of the town not to build a new house. They have certainly done as well as they could under ertainly done as well as they could under ceriamy done as wen as they could maker the circumstances. At the town meeting held to consider the proposition of build-ing a new house the voters were plainly told that it would cost more to repair the old house than to build a new one, and the voters cast their ballots with this knowl-

LITERARY NOTES.

The Chautauquan.

The Chautauquan for February presents an inviting table of contents. The first ten pages are devoted to the Highways and Byways department. This we always find richly rewarding in presenting in clearness the events of the times. "Our Dog in-the-Manger Policy in South America" is by George D. Waldron. "Chick-u-decised is a heartifully illustrated pager by is by George D. dee is a beauti dee" is a beautifully illustrated paper by Prancis H. Herrick. "Woman Suffrage in Colorado" is by William McLoud Raine. In the "Formative Incidents in American Diplomacy" series the war of 1812 is taken up, also the Monroe Doctrine. The por-trait of the father of the Monroe Boctrine is on the cover of the magazine.

Everybody's Magazine.

Everybody's magazine is published by ohn Wanamaker at 88 East Ninth St., ew York. It is for everybody inasmuch John Wans New York. New York. It is for everybody innamuch as it is only $1.00 a year—ten cents a number. The leading article in the February issue is the "Life of the Deep Sea." The author is C. H. Townsend. Its value is greatly increased by the many illustrations from photographs. "The Little's Sister" is by Eleanor Hoyt. "The Wind in the Rose Brush" is by Mary E. Wilkins. "Travelling One Hundred and Ten Miles an Hour" shows what can be done in England and is wonderful. There are two seand and is wonderful. There are two se-rial stories, "Tangled up in Beulah Land" and "Belshazzar," which is a tale of the fall of Babylon.

New England Magazine.

The cover to the February number will receive more than a passing glance as it is a copy of a print published by Foster Brothers, Boston. It is called "The Engagement Ring." In the American Shrines series is Trenton monument, making a beautiful frontispiece. The second part of "Governors of Massachusetts" is the leading passer and deservedly so. There are ing paper and deservedly so. There are portraits of the governors from Gov. Clif-ford to Gov. Crane. A very interesting article is by George Hodges, entitled "Cap-tain Miles Standish." It is accompanied by a picture of Standish house in Duxbury and of the Standish monument. A finely limitrated paper is by Alexander Hume ford which is called "New England Ship There are several good stories.

Century,

The frontispiece to the midwinter numbor is a copy of Cole's, "The Daughter of El Greco." The opening paper is "Chiongo's Great River Harbor" by Elliott Flower. There is an article, "A Visit to oago's Great River harbor by Ethous Flower. There is an article, "A Visit to Mount Vernon a Century Ago." This visit was made by a comrade of Koseinszko and a disry which he kept has just been discovered in one of the libraries of Poland. Cleero T. Satton contributes a paper about Lincoln and Kentucky. "Browning in Venice" is by Kathrine de Kay Bronson. We have a group of recent Kay Bronson. We have a group of poems with marginal decorations which make a secteworthy feature of this number. "The Improvement of Washington City" is the lins of a series of papers upon this subject. While all the humorous contributions are good, yet the 'Don't Hurry Club' by Albert Bigelow Paine bears off the palm in our estimation.

Review of Reviews.

The quality of timeliness, for which the Review of Reviews has made a reputation, was never better exemplified than in the present February number. The subjects treated are the subjects which are most thought of and which are being discussed by all intelligent readers. The Cuban and Philippine tariffs, the Panama vs. the Nic-aragon anal route the Raines law is New aragua canai route, the Raines law is New York perhaps should be mentioned first. Educational interests are included in an article on President Butler, who has recently been appointed president of Columbia university, succeeding Mayor Seth Low, "Wireless Telegraphy and Marconi's Triumph" by Carl Snyder, with pictures, is an article we cannot afford to let pass without careful perusal. There is a character sketch of Leslie Mortimer Shaw by Johnson Brigham from which we quote the following—"However brilliant the array of orators he has never been outclassed, for he is unique—a class by himragua canal route, the Raines law in New classed, for he is unique—a class by him self." The number is a feast to a hungry reader. The cartoons give hints and sug-gestions gained from no other source.
